I have two key use cases where it would be very hard to beat this thing. First, I want to take videos of races I run. I live in Illinois which has a very dry climate. There are times I run up to 20 miles in the park. Not many people I know have a 360 degree camera. I can download the videos of those races on the phone or desktop, then upload them to youtube. This is a lot of work, though, and I don't have a lot of time to do it. However, this device can do it for me. It can take the video from the racing and upload it
